

Software Competitiveness International (SOFTCOM INTERNATIONAL), is a rapidly growing company, specializing in Software Research & Development and Information & Communications Technologies Services, located in Athens, and headquartered in Crete. The skills, the experience and the methodologies of the company and its experts, most of them with a long presence and a high recognition internationally, provide to its clients, both locally and internationally, technical excellence and valuable services, and to its employees the working conditions to further develop their technological expertise within a multi-national environment.

On behalf of one of our major customers, we are looking for a

Technical Project Manager

to offer his/ her services in Germany, for his international and local (German) projects.

In case

- you are a goal-oriented, methodical, well-organized person,
- you are self-motivated and you like to take on new challenges,
- you have good communication skills and you like to cooperate with others within a multi-national team,
- you know how to set goals, to follow deadlines, to recognize and mitigate risks
- you know how to confront and solve conflicts' situations,
- you know and like to plan and to manage a project
- you know and like to coordinate a project team and contact a customer
- you are flexible enough to work in a fast paced environment
- you like to be part of a very dynamically working company,
- you are willing to relocate to Germany (Karlsruhe)

and you cover the following set of skills:

- University Degree in Electronics Engineering or Computer Science or relevant discipline
- Experienced with software development
- Experienced with C#, .NET
- Experienced with project management and project management processes
- Fluency in German (spoken, written)
- Fluency in English (spoken, written)

Apply for an interview, sending your detailed CV in English, quoting reference ref: IM/10/12, to the following e-mail address: hr@softcom-int.com, not later than 15.11.2012.

A competitive remuneration package is offered, based on qualification and experience, and work in a challenging multinational environment.

All applications will be treated as confidential.

For information regarding our company, please consult our web site: www.softcom-int.com